

SAVAS ROBOLIS:

Savas Robolis is a Professor of Economics of Social Affairs, in the department of Social Policy and Social Anthropology of Panteion University of Athens. He is also the Scientific Director of the Institute of Labour of G.S.E.E. (General Workers' Confederation of Greece) - ADEDY (Management of Associations of Public Employees). Author of books, articles and papers for conferences he is also a member of working groups to carry out several issues relevant to economic and social policy, such as: «The migration of Greeks in western Germany», «Health and Development», «Social Security», «The social polity after the crisis of the State-Welfare », « Foreign investment in Greece », « The development in the eastern Aegean », «Working on Health and Safety », « Population and Social Security », « The role of partnerships in promoting social cohesion », « The European Union employment », « The reduction of working time » and many other.